

Introducing Park Bench®

Earlier generations relied on the “village” as a way to raise children. Groups of families lived together and helped with child rearing. Today, families live farther apart, and that built-in support system no longer exists, while the challenges associated to raising children have significantly increased. The problems are getting tougher, and parents feel more isolated.

With Park Bench, parents aren’t alone. An open dialogue will present all sides of an issue, empowering parents to solve problems and make lasting changes.

Envision a place where you could sit and talk with the benefit of numerous experts. Initially, we’ll deliver the Park Bench series in the form of audio broadcasts and podcasts posted on the Parental Wisdom website. In the near future we will add telephone seminars, and eventually host live Park Bench programs in locations around the country.
